

BulletinHealthcare Partners with The Infectious Diseases Society of America To Launch a New Daily News Briefing

RESTON, Va., Feb. 22, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- BulletinHealthcare, a leading provider of news briefings for top medical associations, today announced that it has launched its latest briefing to members of The Infectious Diseases Society of America.

The briefing is distributed via email to a verified audience of over 11,000 infectious diseases physicians and scientists Monday through Friday at 8 am ET. The content of the briefing follows BulletinHealthcare's signature curation and distillation of the day's most important news stories by BulletinHealthcare's team of healthcare experts. The briefing focuses on the news most relevant to the nation's practicing infectious diseases experts.

"We are proud to partner with IDSA, and in so doing, add an infectious diseases-endemic publication to BulletinHealthcare's collection of 34 daily briefings," said Justin Fadgen, Chief Corporate Development Officer of BulletinHealthcare. "This briefing marks the second new briefing BulletinHealthcare has launched this year, and we look forward to continuing to grow our verified audience – members of the country's premier medical societies."

"With the Daily News Briefing, our members can start their morning with a quick, yet in depth, overview of the day's news that's relevant to their practice of infectious diseases medicine, whether it be in the public health, policy, scientific, or clinical arena. We're looking forward to providing this valuable member benefit," said Chris Busky, CAE, CEO of IDSA.

Advertising opportunities in IDSA's Daily News Briefing are now available, including special founding advertiser packages for 2018.
